THEMATIC MINIREVIEW SERIES

With the rapid rate of today's scientific advancements, it can be difficult enough to keep up with one's own research speciality, let alone the numerous other disciplines covered under the biochemistry umbrella.

JBC Minireviews Allow You To:

- Keep abreast of the advances and trends in biochemical research outside your own area of expertise.
 - Digest a concise summary of a particular field in a manner understandable to biochemists working in any area.

HOW TO PUBLISH...

Tips for Authors

■ Know the JBC and why you might want to submit your manuscript there

- ✓ Scope of the journal
- ✓ Who are the Editors
- ✓ Impact factor / Weighted Page Rank / Y-factor
- ✓ Acceptance rate
- ✓ Editorial policies (<http://www.jbc.org/misc/edpolicy.shtml>)

■ Read and conform to "Instructions for Authors" (www.jbc.org/misc/edpolicy.shtml)

- ✓ How to organize the manuscript (Abstract, Introduction, etc.)
- ✓ Make sure references are comprehensive and accurate
- ✓ How to style references, chemicals, etc.
- ✓ How to cite an article
- ✓ How to prepare the text and graphics and format the PDF
- ✓ How to submit the manuscript online
- ✓ How to include supplemental data (www.jbc.org/submit)
- ✓ One PDF file; separate cover letter; abstract; make sure corresponding author name and email are correct, as all correspondence will be electronic

■ Pay close attention to spelling, grammar, and punctuation

■ Make sure titles are clear and understandable— avoid acronyms

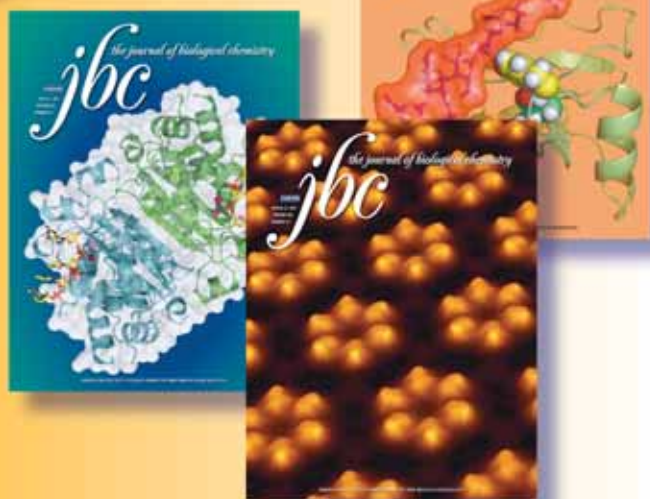

■ Avoid careless mistakes... check your work

When a paper is accepted, it is published online within 24 hours and publication information is sent to PubMed, so important information on the manuscript must be accurate (title, author names, institutions, corresponding author). We do not make changes to the author's accepted manuscript (the JBC's Papers in Press version).

■ Know Ethical Policies and Procedures

- ✓ Authorship
- ✓ Conflict of Interest
- ✓ Duplicate Publication, Plagiarism, Falsification

■ Follow Copyright Policies

Major Reasons for a Paper Being Rejected

1. Inappropriate for the JBC—does not follow Guidelines for Editorial Decisions.
2. Describes poorly designed and/or poorly controlled studies.
3. Does not fall into upper 15% of a scientific area.
4. Poorly written manuscript.
